Su Xinping

Born in 1960 in Jining, Inner Mongolia, Su Xinping is currently a professor and Deputy Head of Printmaking at the China Central Academy of Fine Arts (CAFA) in Beijing. Su creates paintings, prints, and videos that range from landscapes to portraiture. He addresses both personal and collective narratives, illustrating the impact of urbanization on people and their communities, as well as his own journey from the grassland of Inner Mongolia to the city of Beijing. Su Xinping's work has been exhibited at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, the Portland Art Museum, the Singapore Art Museum, the Shanghai Art Museum, and his work is also included in the collections of the British Museum, the National Gallery of Australia, and the Museum Ludwig in Cologne, Germany, among others. Su was nominated as a candidate for the UNESCO Award for the Promotion of the Arts in 1993. Su Xinping is known for his paintings and lithographic prints. The figures portrayed in his paintings, whether they show respect, critique or pity, always reveal underlying compassion in his work. In revealing the relationship between man and society, the works suggest a certain suspension or even anxiety. His views come more from the perspective of fate than from a moral perspective.
